

ALEXANDRIA.

FRIDAY EVENING, MAY 3.

Associate Justice Harlan, of the U. S. Supreme Court, delivered an address in Chicago on the recent centennial of Washington's inauguration, in which he said :

But we cannot close our eyes to the fact that foreign governments are throwing upon our shores and crowding our great cities with vast bordes of men who have no prop our government, and the integrity of our civilization, are not seriously menaced by the presence here of so many that place no value upon the inestimable right of suffrage, and have little sympathy with, or knowl edge of, our institutions.

Did the idea ever enter the head of Judge Harlan that the vast hordes of freed negroes, who crowd not only the cities but the villages and hamlets of the South, and to whose domination he and his party would subject whole southern communities and even entire southern States, "have no proper conception of the philosophy or spirit of American liberty, place no value," except its market price, "upon the inestimable right of suffrage, and have little sympathy with or knowledge of our institutions?" And yet the New York Herald says the members of the U. S. Supreme Court are unpre judiced. Few northern men can see straight when looking at the South.

GEN GORDON, of Georgia, in his speech at the formal opening of the new home of the Southern Club in New York, last night, said : "Georgia and her southern sisters have never lost for a day or an hour their devo tion and loyalty to republican govern ment and constitutional freedom." Gen. Gordon spoke the truth. The South, during the war between the States, fought for re publican government and constitutional freedom. But because Gen. Jackson, of Geor gia, said that when passion shall subside such will be the verdict of all well informed peo ple, Mr. Thurman, the democratic candi date for Vice President at the last election, called him a "drunken crank."

By special order of the committee in charge of the arrangements for the recent celebration of the centennial of Washing ton's inauguration, "Dixie" was excluded from the music rendered on that occasion. This was probably done lest the "loyal" car of Mr. Hayes-who so loved his country that he stole its Presidency-who took a prominent part in the ceremonies, might be offended by a tune so "disloyal." As little or no regard is paid to the feelings of southern men who attend national celebrations in the North, it would be well for such men hereafter to do their national celebrating at

THERE was an increase of 22 per cent, in the population of Pennsylvania from 1870 to 1880, of 31 per cent, in the number of schools, and of 22 per cent, in the number of teach ers; but during the same decade the increase in crime was 50 per cent., in pauperism and erime combined 41 per cent, and in insanity 113 per cent. But, all the same, the repub lican newspapers of Pennsylvania continue to advocate the passage of the Blair educational bil, as a "sure means" of decreasing crime and pauperism in the South.

THAT REDOUBTABLE Warrior, General Butler, celebrated the recent so-called national c ntennial by a speech in Lowell, Massachusetts, upon a battle that took place during the war between the States, in which fellow cit zana of a common country were engaged in a deadly internecine strife, the memory of which all wise Americans strive to obliterate.

THE BATIO of illiterates to population in Massachusetts, and of divorce to marriage in New Hampshire, is greater than that in the other States of the Union. And yet northern republican journals say education is the great need of the South. Such journals can see the motes in other people's eyes, but not the beams in their own eyes

AMONG THE centennial items telegraphed from New York was one to the effect that the President, in order to guard against the effects of the harbor breezes of that city, "took a large dose of quinine," He should thank the democrats, who removed the thank the democrats, who removed the by "The Virginians," the New York society tariff from quinine, for allowing him to do of the sons of the Old Dominion residing in so without impoverishing himself.

AT A meeting of representatives of the G. A. R. in New York during the recent centennial celebration there, a statement was made to the effect that a member of that organization had taken off his Grand Army badge and pinned it on Genaral (fordon's breast. The whole meeting was at once thrown into a state of violent excitement. The department commander of New Jersey said "any man who disgraced the Grand Army badge in glad to meet your desires on this subject, that way is not fit to be a comrade, and should be expelled." The chairman of the reception committee said: "No citizen, however loyal he may now be, can in honor wear that badge, much less one who fought against us, and any man who would pin a Grand Army badge on a man who fought against the Union is unworthy to be a member of the order, and does not kno s its first principles." But, for all this, General Joseph E. Johnston, who. by the by, has been informed that he will be re-tained by Mr. Harrison as Railroad Commissioner, not only wears a Grand Army badge, but is a member of the G A. R.

Southern Men at a Feast.

The opening of the sumptuously appointed home of the New York Southern Society at No. 18 West Twenty-fifth street, New York, took place last night in the form of a grand banquet and reception. All the Southern people of prominence in the city were present, in addition to a long list of New York prominent men. At the banquet, at which the president, John C. Calhoun, presided, the toast list was arranged to include an address from the governor of each Southern State present. The order of speeches arranged for was as follows : Vice President Levi P. Richardson, of Carolina, Governor Fitzbugh Lee, of Virgina; Governor Fowle, of North Carolina Governor Simon B. Buckner, of Kentucky, and Col. Hancock, of Texas. The dining rooms were tastefully decorated with bunting and choice exotics. The representative Southern people present other than mentioned in the list of speakers included: Sen-ator John W. Daniel, Congressman M. C. Butler, of South Carolina; the Virginia commissioners, Col. Walter H. Taylor, Judge W. W. Crump, Judge Staples, Maj. Holmes Conrad, ex Congressman Randolph Tucker, Senator Wade Hampton, of South Carolina Gen. Charles Anderson, Col. Witt, and Col Cowardin, of Gov. Lee's staff, and members of the staff of Gov. Richardson, of South Carolina. President Calhoun, in his opening address, said every member of the society would have been proud to welcome beyond all others at the house warming the honored President of the United States, who, however, was unable to be present in consequence of imperative official duties. The President, he said, expressed his earnest and best wishes for the society's welfare.

Col. Calhoun then introduced Vice-Presiden Morton, who was greeted with cheers. Mr. Morton returned thanks for the opportunity given him of meeting the gentlemen of the society, and wished them every success. He was followed by Chauncey M. Depew, who said he never until now realized that the South was the home and inspiresting of oratory. Mr. Depow continued in his usual cloquent style, and then Henry W. Grady was introduced to speak for "Cur Absent Ones-Our Kith and Kin in the South." Mr. Grady did full justice to his subject. Brief remarks were made by Gov. Lee, of Virginia; Gov. Euckner, of Kentucky; Gov. Fowle, of North Carolina; Gov. Biggs, of Delaware, and Gov. Richardson, of South Carolina. The chief event of the evening was Gov. Gordon's speech.
